

HONOURING INDIGENOUS CULTURAL PROTOCOLS in SOCIAL WORK PRACTICE

Wednesday, March 28

1:00 - 3:00 pm

Dr. Freda Ahenakew Branch Library

(219 Avenue K South, Saskatoon - behind Station 20 West)

This FREE session is open to everyone with a social work background, including students. This session will explore how we can honour and respect cultural protocols when working with Indigenous people, such as: respectfully inviting Elders to support and guide our work, community relationships and meeting etiquette, attending cultural events, and participating in ceremonies.

PRESENTERS

Gilbert Kewistep, BISW, MASW

Originally from the Yellow Quill First Nation, Gilbert works as a Cultural Advisor and Resolution Health Support Worker with the First Nations and Métis Health Service in the Saskatchewan Health Authority and as a sessional instructor at First Nations University of Canada.

Tania Lafontaine, BISW, MASW

Tania works as a Lead Consultant with Representative Workforce - First Nations and Métis Health in the Saskatchewan Health Authority. She has a background in working with Western and traditional approaches to help and healing.

Space is very limited. RSVP by Friday, March 23 to saswsaskatoonbranch@gmail.com

This is a Social Work Week event hosted by SASW - Saskatoon Branch.

To learn more about the Saskatoon Branch, including SW Week events, join our Facebook group: 'SASW - Saskatoon Branch'